

Special Notices.

Borrowing money upon the installment plan is attended with these advantages: The loan can be repaid in small monthly amounts which include a payment of interest of the principal, so that by the expiration of the term it can be all paid without any great inconvenience to the borrower. The rate of interest is generally lower. The expenses of obtaining the money are not so great as in good money, and the money is paid up as soon as the property then it often happens that the rents will meet the monthly installments and in time pay off the particular amount.

For further information, particulars inquire of
W. H. J. BROOKS,
Agent for Savings and Loan Society,
No. 12 Spring Street.

Clock repairing a specialty. Mr. A. W. Pratt, a practical clock maker from the Ansonia Clock Manufacturing Co., and late adjuster for the National Clock Co. of San Francisco, has taken the new window at 36 Spring st., where he will repair clocks in a first-class manner. Satisfaction guaranteed. m12tf

Buy city lots planted with orange trees. Mr. Morgan now offers to the public at No. 4, Temple Block, Spring street, about one hundred fine residence lots, being about ten minutes walk from the Postoffice, each lot being planted with orange trees, five years old and in good condition.

These lots are subdivisions of the "Temple Tract," lying and fronting on the South side of First street, about one hundred and fifty yards from and East of the railroad to Wilmington. On the West the tract fronts on Hewitt street. Prices moderate. Terms easy. Enquire at the Real Estate office of G. W. Morgan, No. 4 Temple Block, Spring street. May 1st

Ladies' two-button kid gloves at $1 per pair; one-button bid at 87cts. per pair. Extra heavy brown and bleached sheeting at 12cts. per yard; good brown and bleached sheeting 10 yards for $1, at the Bazaar, corner of Main and Requena streets, opposite the U. S. Hotel. m1:1m

125 gents' cheviot suits in frocks and sacks, at $14, worth $20; 500 pairs heavy cassimere pants at $4 per pair, worth $6, at the Bazaar, corner Main and Requena streets, opposite the U. S. Hotel. m1:1m

One of the finest improvements in the city will be the re-building of the Lafayette Hotel. The whole of the back of the house is already being torn down, and the front will shortly be built up. The stores will be just half as large as they are now, and, as the Impartial has a very large stock on hand, they will not have half room enough for their goods and in order to prevent them from being damaged by dirt and dust, they have decided to sell all their Spring goods at less than cost, and others, such as cottons, table-linen, etc., at exact cost. We advise all to call the Impartial and convince themselves of the great bargains. Such bargains they can never get again, and in order to prevent a great rush, we advise all to call early and take advantage of the building of the Lafayette Hotel. a16

26 pieces summer poplins, reduced to 25cts. per yard; 50 pieces grass cloth, reduced to 15cts. per yard; Lawns Plaques Nascoo Grenadines and other dress goods in great variety at the lowest prices at the Bazaar, corner of Main and Requena streets, opp. U. S. Hotel. m1:1m

The auction sales of the Santa Gertrudes lands fixed for the 19th, 20th and 21st of the month have been unavoidably postponed in consequence of the illness of the surveyor and the managing agent Mr. Edward McLain. The postponement contemplates the sale of the property on the 26th, 27th and 28th of May. a17:1d

If you want a good suit of clothes for a little money, go to the Bazaar, corner of Main and Requena streets, and get one of those $12 suits, worth $17. m1:1m

The principal organs of sense are congenitally defective. The eyes are being crowned by all Gentlemen, with one of the superior hats which can be had at Demonds', Main Street. m1:1m

Insurance Agency—Commodore of California Fire and Marine, assets $500,000; California Insurance Co., assets $500,000; Fire Association of Philadelphia, incorporated 1820, assets $1,000,000. The Commodore do their business at the lowest paying rates, charging for each risk according to the hazard assumed, without reference to any insurance company on the market. All losses promptly adjusted and paid. B. MCLELLAN, Agent. 38 Main street, Los Angeles. m1:1m

Silver and gold plating; electroplating; ivory staining; gold leafing; gold leafing; locks, keys, seals, keys, steel, metal, door-plates made to order; knives and surgical instruments made and sawed and filed; piano-furniture and case made; medical instruments made; model making and repairs on all fancy work and machinery, from a pin to a gun; all kinds of work done; all bought, sold and repaired. Come and see the new sewing machine engine. Sewing Machine Exchange, 39 Spring Street. m1:1m

Moore's Restaurant, on Commercial street, is the proper place to go for a good meal, with a good glass of beer or tea to drink with it. There are many good restaurants on the Pacific coast where so many of the substantials and some of the luxuries are for 25cts. D. B. Moore, proprietor. Commercial street. Private eating rooms have been nicely fitted up for the accommodation of ladies. 15:1

Wm. Farrell, at No. 19 Court street, attends to all business in the way of plumbing and gas and steam pipe fitting. He guarantees satisfaction in all cases and charges reasonable prices. He also refinishes old gas fixtures, making them as good as new. Also, agent for the "Empire gas-burner" and "Economic gas-governor"—both valuable acquisitions to fixtures of a house and great savings over the old style apparatus. Remember the place, No. 19 Court street. m1:1f

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER.
EDWARD A. PREUSS

Is a candidate for County Treasurer at the approaching election. m1:1f

FOR COUNTY RECORDER.
C. W. GOULD

Announces himself as a candidate for County Recorder at the ensuing election. m1:1d

FOR COUNTY RECORDER.
J. W. GILLETTE.

(PRESENT INCUMBIENT)
Desires a second term only. m1:1

Los Angeles Herald

SUNDAY, MAY 16, 1875.

IF BISMARCK writes all the belligerent notes which bear his name he must be a terrible man. We expect he is very much surprised sometimes to read the letters which the newspaper prints with his signature attached.

NUMBER one of the fourteenth volume of the San Francisco Daily Stock Report comes to us with the name of WILLIAM M. BUNKER as one of the proprietors. BUNKER is one of the long-time attachés of the Bulletin, and is a young man of industry and energy, who believes that what is worth doing at all is worth doing well. Under his management the Report will soon become a reliable and influential journal. The number before us is a bright and intelligent issue.

From our San Francisco exchanges we gather that the primaries held in that city on Wednesday did not show the predominant strength of any one candidate for Governor. The conclusion is that among the delegates are friends of all the candidates, but majorities for none. The striking feature of the election is the unusually large vote polled and the great interest manifested. This is a straw which indicates how San Francisco will vote at the election. The Examiner accepts the primary vote as evidence that the city will go largely Democratic in September. The Independent and Republican papers are silent on this point, and their silence implies that they are both astonished and disatisfied at the number of Democrats developed by the Primary. If the Democrats nominate good men there is no doubt but that San Francisco will give them a majority of over five thousand.

Law and Penalty.

The moral bar to the commission of crime is nothing like so strong in some natures as the fear of the punishment inflicted by the law. The guswings of conscience are less dreaded than the verdict of a jury. A sense of justice will sometimes stay a hand, but the penalty designated by the code is the more powerful argument against striking the blow. Great criminal lawyers give these opinions as the result of a lifetime study. Where there is no punishment save the consciousness of wrong-doing, crime and lawlessness are more common and human life less valuable than where the laws are rigid and conviction and punishment tread close on the heels of the offence. These aphorisms are intended as introductory to a few remarks on the apparent laxity of the law in the conviction of evil-doers and the lightness of the penalty imposed on them of late years in California. Under the quibbles of the law many offenders escape the punishment they justly merit, and through a mauldin sentimentality unworthy of an intelligent community light penalties are imposed. In San Francisco they say political influences enable offenders to escape, and there they do not hesitate to charge that just before election, in the courts of judges desiring to retain their seats, fines and penalties grow light in proportion to the number of votes controlled by the prisoner at the bar. We trust there is no ground for these charges in San Francisco or elsewhere. The law must be enforced and crime punished. The safety of the lives and property of all depend on this. We cannot maintain the peace by permitting law-breakers to escape with a nominal fine. Let justice be dealt out with an impartial hand.

Is it a Political Move?

It is intimated by a number of leading journals in the East that the Texas border raids, graphic accounts of which we are receiving from day to day, are the commencement of a movement intended to facilitate the chance for GRANT's re-election. It is the purpose of the administration, so say the seers, to provoke a war with Mexico, and in the excitement consequent on the war, overcome the objection to the third term and his Majesty in as a military necessity. It seems hardly possible that the great Republican party will endorse a scheme so disreputable, and certainly the people of the United States will not be deceived into the continued support of a man whom they have already virtually repudiated, on a pretext so flimsy and unreal as this. It is difficult to think that the managers of a party will force a war on their own people and carry war, with all its attendant horrors into a weak and defenseless nation for the sole purpose of maintaining itself in power. If the Mexicans along our border violate the law and commit outrages on the property and persons of United States citizens, they should be punished and the Mexican Government notified of the transgression. If this is done, the trouble will cease. Mexico does not desire war with the United States. She is conscious of the inequality of the match and nothing short of downright insult or actual invasion will induce her to enter the arena. We have no doubt she will do all in her power to prevent marauding on our borders and promptly punish the offenders. She will not go to war with us if she can help it, and our people will not countenance a scheme for forcing a war on a neighboring nation when that scheme has for its sole purpose the maintenance in power of a political party.

Los Angeles County.

Up country aspirants for office are evincing considerable concern about how Los Angeles county will cast her vote at the approaching election. We dislike to see people on the anxious seat, and will proceed to gratify their curiosity as far as possible. Since the time which runneth not in the memory of man until the legislative election two years ago, Los Angeles county has rolled up her regular Democratic majority. The break was occasioned by local issues and the general demoralization of party which prevailed at the time. The Independents nominated a ticket and the Republicans supported it. The contest was between the Democrats on one side and the combined forces of the Independents and Republicans on the other. The result was the election of the Democratic ticket, with the exception of BUSH for Senator and HIGBY for Assemblyman—both of whom were Independent nominees. The antecedents of BUSH were Democratic and those of HIGBY Republican. At this time the indications are that the county will give a handsome Democratic majority this Fall. The Democrats are now united and the course of the Administration has here as elsewhere sent hundreds into the ranks of the only party in which the people have hopes of a reform of the many abuses which now prevail. The record of the Independent party in this State is unsatisfactory, and from that organization little seems to be expected. These facts give strength to the opinion expressed by many of our well informed citizens, that this county is now Democratic by from 300 to 500 majority.

Here and Elsewhere.

It is not pleasant to read in our exchanges that the primaries held in that city on Wednesday did not show the predominant strength of any one candidate for Governor. The conclusion is that among the delegates are friends of all the candidates, but majorities for none. The striking feature of the election is the unusually large vote polled and the great interest manifested. This is a straw which indicates how San Francisco will vote at the election. The Examiner accepts the primary vote as evidence that the city will go largely Democratic in September. The Independent and Republican papers are silent on this point, and their silence implies that they are both astonished and disatisfied at the number of Democrats developed by the Primary. If the Democrats nominate good men there is no doubt but that San Francisco will give them a majority of over five thousand.

Law and Penalty.

The moral bar to the commission of crime is nothing like so strong in some natures as the fear of the punishment inflicted by the law. The guswings of conscience are less dreaded than the verdict of a jury. A sense of justice will sometimes stay a hand, but the penalty designated by the code is the more powerful argument against striking the blow. Great criminal lawyers give these opinions as the result of a lifetime study. Where there is no punishment save the consciousness of wrong-doing, crime and lawlessness are more common and human life less valuable than where the laws are rigid and conviction and punishment tread close on the heels of the offence. These aphorisms are intended as introductory to a few remarks on the apparent laxity of the law in the conviction of evil-doers and the lightness of the penalty imposed on them of late years in California. Under the quibbles of the law many offenders escape the punishment they justly merit, and through a mauldin sentimentality unworthy of an intelligent community light penalties are imposed. In San Francisco they say political influences enable offenders to escape, and there they do not hesitate to charge that just before election, in the courts of judges desiring to retain their seats, fines and penalties grow light in proportion to the number of votes controlled by the prisoner at the bar. We trust there is no ground for these charges in San Francisco or elsewhere. The law must be enforced and crime punished. The safety of the lives and property of all depend on this. We cannot maintain the peace by permitting law-breakers to escape with a nominal fine. Let justice be dealt out with an impartial hand.

Was it a Put Up Job?

The trial of the "Elaine" stealers, just terminated in San Francisco, developed nothing as to the object of the robbers beyond a desire on their part to make money by the theft. It was hardly to be expected that the real bottom of the transaction would be reached in the trial, for the reason that if the thing had any real bottom the instruments used were not aware of the purpose of those who induced them to become the principals in a transaction which did more to spread the fame of the creator of "Elaine" than could have been done by a lifetime at the easel. Ever since the recovery of the picture we have had our opinion as to the real purpose of the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the gallery and cut the picture from its frame. Of the three who watched outside there is the faintest shadow of suspicion that they were working for the reward paid by those whose purpose it was to add to the theft. Of the four men who carried out the robbery, one at least was in earnest, and stole the painting with the sole and only view of making money by the theft—the reward that would be offered for its delivery and no questions asked. This one of the party was the man who went in at the window, ascended to the